THE BEST Photoplay Department in WASHINGTON

Directors the Rock Foundation For Success of Film.

One of the most important factors in the making of a successful photoplay is the director-the audience before which the actors and actresses first perform their parts, and who must be absolutely satisfied with heir work before it is incorporated in the film. The original photoplay orectors were compelled to create heir own rules and supply their own deas. There was no such thing as scenario at the beginning, and the director, as a rule, furnished his own story. And then came the scenario writer who relieved him of that portion of his work. The competition had become sp great, however, that it was necessary for the director to work day and night to make his film picture the stories that were written for it, as the acting of a play is simply the culmination of the work of production-not the whole of it These conditions developed a class of directors who thought they were really the play, and who gave neither scenario writer nor actor the credit for having ideas. There are yet a number of directors who will not even deign to explain to the members their companies what they are acting, and who begin in the middle of a story and work toward both ends without letting the acting staff ends without letting the acting staff know what it is supposed to be doing. This class, happily, is rapidly lying out. The greatest complaint loday among people who are familiar ith some of the technique of the photoplay, is what they term the director-made" play—the play that a produced without regard to the author's story or the actors' idea of their narts. As a matter of fact the successful rector is the man who can cordi-ite the work of the author and for with his own so that a perfect eduction is made. David W. Grif-th has set the pace for this kind of director. There are several others his class and it is rather evident by must all come to it if they ex-to make any sort of a success. day the man and women of note the literary world who are writing enaries or permitting their stories be dramatized are not the kind to calmly by and permit their work be re-hashed and patched to suit lurid fancy of some melodra-ic or slau-stick comedy directime of the coung men who has e good as director as well as an r. Government Plans to Put Pres sure on Offenders to Break Up the Practice.

ary Department on the banks of the country to stop what is declared to be many banks, particularly State banks in the South, to heard cash and withdraw the nominal support to business. Secretary McAdoo is aroused over the situation, and complaints that have been brought to him by business men and their representatives in Congress. and is considering means to stop the practice. While the Secretary does not contemplate going so far as to revoke the charter of offending banks, he is making it plain that those banks coming formula—the corn cure on a new prinof currency, will receive scant favor from the Treasury when they may need

It is alleged that many bankers are building up unusual reserves and they are not only curtailing loans and refusing new accommodations, but that many of them are refusing to renew obligaions falling due.

Members of the reserve board and of the banking committees in Congress are confident that there is sufficient curconfident that there is sufficient currency in the banks to meet all needs. if the banks can be led to use, instead of hoarding it. A few days ago s Southern banker applied for a deposit of public money, but when it was found that this banker was keeping a ceserve of 35 per cent, when he was only required to keep in the Sccretary besame vigorously expressive of his attitude and turned down the application.
